Smith & Wesson Launches SW22 Victory[®] Target Model Pistol

SW22 Victory pistol features Target Sights, Target Grips

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., (April 10, 2018) – Smith & Wesson Corp. today announced that it has added a Target Model to its award-winning SW22 Victory line of pistols. Chambered in .22 LR, the new SW22 Victory Target Model pistol incorporates features designed for competitive target shooting, including target sights, custom target thumb rest grip, and polished feed ramp.

Jan Mladek, General Manager of Smith & Wesson and M&P brands, said, “Since the launch of the SW22 Victory pistol in 2015, our customers have asked for a model specifically built for target shooting competitions. With that in mind, we designed the new SW22 Victory Target Model with target grips and sights to provide our customers with an ideal target shooting pistol.”

Designed for target shooting competitions, the new SW22 Victory Target Model pistol features include:

- 5.5” bull barrel
- Target trigger with adjustable trigger stop
- Black blade front sight and adjustable rear target sight
- Textured, polymer target thumb rest grip panels for both right and left handed shooters
- Picatinny-style rail for use with an optic

The SW22 Victory Target Model pistol is available with a 10+1 round capacity, ships with two magazines and is available now with an MSRP of $429. This model is also available for sale in Massachusetts and is listed on the Formal Target Shooting Roster.
